

A Z . A G . L A N D I

The Landi family's roots in agriculture began in the 19th century, as part of the sharecropping system prevalent at the time. In 1948, Sergio Landi purchased the first parcel of land, 12 acres, which he deemed to be the perfect location for growing vineyards. Here he built a house with a wine cellar in the basement and planted the first vineyard of Lacrima di Morro d'Alba, which was considered to be the best varietal in the area and valued since the 10th century.

In the following years the remaining land was planted with vineyards. In 1987, Lacrima di Morro d'Alba received the DOC designation. The name derives from Lacrima, which means tears. When the grapes are fully mature, small drops of liquid from the grape form on its surface, reminiscent of tears. Morro d'Alba is the largest town in the area. Hence the name – Lacrima di Morro d'Alba. In 1987 only 85 acres were planted with Lacrima, now there are still only 265 acres.

Luciano Landi, Sergio's grand child, took over the family business in 1990. He has spent his entire life on the farm, next to his grandfather gaining from his experience and sharing his vision. Together they plan the future of "Azienda Agricola Landi". They modernized the operation, purchased 16 acres of prime land and planted Lacrima, using the high density planting techniques, 6500 vines per hectare.

The new facility and vineyards, along with the wealth of knowledge gained through the generations, assures the production of the highest quality for years to come.
