

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

The Pecorino is an Abruzzo native variety, rediscovered some years ago thanks to the recovering work of a few brave winegrowers. Bright straw yellow wine. Hints of wilted yellow flowers, citrus, dried fruit and bread crust. The acidulous appealing and the marked minerality are balanced with an excellent structure and a long persistence.

